

Balustrading Drawings

Our Georgian balustrading has been developed from an 18th century design to recreate the elegant proportions seen on early buildings. The system comprises baluster, base, capping, and pier and has a special interlocking reverse profile connections for relative ease of fitting. The components of this system are "make to order" and adequate lead should be allowed. Note that balustrading should be professionally drawn up before installation and that fitting should be completed by an experienced tradesman. Full details of setout and design are available upon request.
